Introduction

Hello and welcome to the Winter 2021 issue of the Eat Out Norfolk guide.

What an unbelievably tough past year we have all endured. While everyone has been affected by the Covid pandemic, we just wanted to pass on a supportive message to the very people who are front and foremost in this publication – those working in the hospitality trade.

All over the county, we have seen pubs, restaurants and cafés dig deep into their levels of resilience to not only survive as businesses but also to serve their local community.

We have seen restaurants providing food for the vulnerable, farm shops quickly deploying an online service to get food to customers, delis making space on their shelves for the essentials that the local community need.

And, as one of the last sectors of the economy to fully open, our pubs and restaurants continue to struggle as they face staff shortages and delivery issues.

And yet, walk into any of our eateries in Norfolk and you will be greeted warmly and served the very best food – usually local, seasonal and made there and then.

So, as the end of 2021 approaches, we salute our hospitality industry with a thank you from the bottom of our hearts and wish you a successful and happy 2022.

Cheers!

THE BELL AT MARLINGFORD

At The Bell at Marlingford, we pride ourselves on making every customer feel like a local. Set in an idyllic location, we are a family friendly pub and restaurant that likes to welcome all, including well behaved four-legged friends.

Aiming to celebrate local produce as much as possible, we work with some of the best producers around Norfolk, such as Swanton Morley Butchers, Home Farm Gin, Dann's Ice Cream and many other small, independent suppliers and breweries.

We are now taking bookings for the Christmas period. Our festive menu will be running throughout December. This is available to view on our website, along with our other menus. We do often get booked up very quickly, so don't hesitate to give us a call to secure your table to dine with us, or to attend one of our music nights. Details of which can be found on our Facebook page.

We look forward to celebrating the festive season with you all this year!

Tim and Koi offer a warm welcome at The New Forge, Aylsham, a restaurant of English and Thai Fusion.

Situated just a few miles north from Norwich Airport on the A140 (just before you reach the historic market town of Aylsham on the River Bure) next to Aylsham Garden Centre.

Serving freshly prepared Thai and English food 6 days a week, the extensive menus cater for all ages and pallets. Booking is always recommended as despite being able to seat over 130 people we do fill up quickly during peak periods – however, we will always try to find you a table as soon as possible if you don't have a booking during these times.

On warmer days, our covered patio area and our extensive garden offer additional seating for that relaxing outdoor experience, and our refurbished children's play area has a safety fence and additional play equipment.

Three great (and very different) days out this winter

Every day should be a learning day! And there is no doubt that everyone will come away from these three experiences with both a different perspective and a little more knowledge.

Grayson Perry at the Sainsbury Centre

For visitors to Norfolk seeking a dose of culture, a trip to the Sainsbury Centre in Norwich is time very well spent.

Full of art, including sculpture, jewellery and paintings, the atrium of the centre is free to enter and, combined with the art trail in the extensive and beautiful grounds, is a lovely day out.

As an added attraction this autumn, the Sainsbury Centre is hosting an exhibition of the work of Grayson Perry. Entitled Grayson Perry: The Pre-Therapy Years, it is an exhibition showcasing the artist's work created between 1982 and 1994.

For this exhibition, Perry's groundbreaking 'lost' pots have been reunited for the first time to focus on the formative years of one of Britain's most recognisable artists.

For a fresh-air art experience, the 350 acre Sculpture Park surrounds the award-winning Norman-Foster designed Sainsbury Centre building at the UEA campus. The parkland features outstanding art, architecture and natural beauty, including important works by notable artists such as Henry Moore, Elisabeth Frink, Lynn Chadwick, Liliane Lijn and Antony Gormley (top tip: be sure to look up at the rooftops).

Deep history coast at West Runton

When you walk the coastline in Norfolk, you are quite literally walking through history.

Named the Deep History Coast, the coastal route between West Runton and Happisburgh and much of the inland area stretching from North-East Norfolk to Suffolk contains layer after layer of historical evidence of the way our ancestors lived. The archaeological finds have also revealed that this part of Norfolk holds the key to our past unlike any other county in the UK.

The historical finds have only relatively recently hit the headlines. In 2013 a team from the British Museum, the Natural History Museum and Queen Mary University in London unearthed evidence that this part of the world is where the first humans came from outside the Great Rift Valley in East Africa.

The team were carrying out a geophysics survey in the estuary mud when they started to unearth signs that the area had more to offer archaeologists than first thought.

Among the amazing finds were 850,000-year-old footprints; the world's biggest mammoth skeleton.

Scientists, using 3-D photography have discovered the footprints of five people, dating back 850,000 years, with clearly defined heels and toes and thought to stand about 5 ft 9 inches tall.

The mammoth skeleton, the most complete specimen to have been found in the world and the oldest to have been found in the UK, was discovered after a stormy night at Happisburgh had uncovered parts of it.

In addition to these headline grabbers, teeth and bones from long extinct animals have also been found and more than 10,000 fossils are found on the Deep History Coast every year. If you find yourself enjoying the beautiful coastline anywhere from West Runton to Happisburgh, remember to take a good look round you as you are walking.

Messing around on the water

The magnificence of the Norfolk coastline, the beauty of the Broads and the tranquility of the rivers and streams are well documented. Walks along and around our many waterways are popular and rightly so. The bird and animal life, the hedgerows, wildflowers and trees all make for a beautiful outdoor experience.

However, a very different perspective can be gained through exploring the county from the water itself. As a county with a long coastline and an almost equally long maritime and sailing history – it is the birthplace of Lord Nelson and George Vancouver after all – Norfolk provides watery adventures for both beginners and experienced water travellers.

From pootling around on a paddle board, jumping the waves on a kite surf at Hunstanton or Cromer, navigating the Creakes at Burnham Overy Staithe, watching seals in their natural habitat at Blakeney or cruising around the Broads, there really is something for everyone.

Here are just a few ideas to help you explore Norfolk from a watery perspective.

Wells Harbour Tours take the stress and hard work out of boating. Trips last about 60 minutes, departing daily on the tide from the main pontoon outside Wells Harbour Office.

Beans Boat Trips is one of many operators that take visitors to see the famous seals of Blakeney up close. The boat departs Morston Harbour and the tour guides and boat skipper are professional, entertaining and full of local knowledge.

North Norfolk Paddleboards offer taster sessions, guided tours and paddleboard hire at Wells, Burnham Overy Staithe, Brancaster Staithe and Burnham Deepdale. Taster sessions last 1.5 hours and get you up to speed with the basics, after which you can hire a board and have some fun, exploring the salt marshes and creeks of the stunning coastline.

The Coastal Exploration Company create fun, relaxing, exhilarating adventures on traditional wooden sailing boats along the North Norfolk Coast.

Whether it is a city culture trip, a deep dive into prehistory or a paddle around the coastline, we think these are brilliant ways to see Norfolk through fresh eyes.

Home grown with an international twist

What do you get when you cross a county that is packed with innovative growers and producers with a chef whose greatest virtue is innovation and a willingness to push the boundaries?

The answer is a menu that celebrates the best of traditional Norfolk with a culinary twist.

Executive head Chef Gemma Arnold and her team in the Thornham Deli kitchen are renowned for their commitment to local suppliers and Norfolk-grown ingredients. Whether this is the mussels, crabs and fish caught along the Norfolk coast; the fresh vegetables that thrive in the fine North Norfolk soils; or the fruits and berries that benefit from sunny days and coastal sea drift.

'I love cooking Thai-inspired dishes,' says Gemma. But, while coconut and ginger might feature heavily in her dishes, so too does Norfolk grown herbs and spices such as basil, saffron, lemon grass and coriander.

'The last few years has seen growers realise that they can really extend what they can offer,' says Gemma. 'It is an unintended consequence of climate change, the food we couldn't grow 50 years ago, can now thrive in our Norfolk micro-climate.'

It is the same with the drinks served at the Deli. Just a decade ago the thought of Norfolk-produced wine being anything more than startlingly alcoholic fruit juice was untenable. Now, wines from Norfolk and the UK more widely are winning accolades and international titles at the world's wine fairs.

Winbirri Vineyard, in Surlingham, is leading the way with its historic victory in the Platinum Best in Show: Best White Single-Varietal Wine In The World awards - which in itself could probably be a contender for the 'competition with the longest name' award.

Winbirri may have led the way but hard on its heels are a number of other Norfolk vineyards, including Flint Vineyard at Earsham, Chet and Waveney Vally at Bergh Apton and the new kid on the block – Burn Valley Vineyard at North Creake.

Among the grape varieties that grow well on Norfolk's chalky soils are Early Pinot, Rondo, regent, Pinot Noir Chardonnay, Solaris and Bacchus.

For people who have never visited Norfolk, there may be a misconception that it is a county where the traditional roast dinner reigns supreme. Yes, Gemma and her team do turn out a fine roast dinner, but that is just one part of a menu that can claim to be internationally-inspired but gown and produced in Norfolk.

Winter is on its way . . .

. . . and here at Thornham Deli we are embracing everything that is wonderful about these darker months of the year.

It might be a frothy hot chocolate or a tasty treat from the Deli counter. A plate of steaming mussels fresh from North Sea; maybe a plate of beautifully prepared seasonal food from our innovative menu. It might just be the chance to catch up with friends in our gorgeous Green Barn dining area.

Whatever it takes to add a glow this winter, then Thornham can be relied on to offer the warmest of welcomes.
